

ANNE FRANK

In many ways, Anne Frank was a typical teenager – she went to watch movies and out for ice cream with friends, she got good grades (except in maths) and she liked boys. And like most teenage girls...she kept a diary. However, the diary Anne kept was anything but typical. Anne's diary documented her experiences as she and her Jewish family hid from the Nazis during World War II.

Although Anne's diary paints a dramatic picture of what it was like to live in fear of the Nazis in the 1940s, there is something else about it that makes it inspirational. What makes Anne's diary so special is the way in which she wrote it. In her diary, she remained positive, in spite of the cruel hardship she and her family were enduring.

Anne is remembered as a girl of tremendous courage and hope - an inspiration to all.

Think of all the beauty still left around you and be happy.

- Anne Frank
