CHARITY – by Coco Sun and Ananya Agrawal, Year 7

On cold, cold nights,
When you're in your cosy warm bed.
Do you think about the conditions,
That makes hundreds dead

When you're surrounded by millions,
Who are much like you.
Do you think about the animals,
That are one of the few.

When you're running around,
Happy and carefree.
Do you think of those,
Who live in melancholy.

When you're brushing your hair,
And admiring how it flows.
Do you think about the people,
Whose hair doesn't even grow.

When you're eating your food,
Or in a warm place.
Do you think about the horrid lifestyle,
That some people, just have to embrace.

When you're playing with your friends,
Overjoyed and content.
Do you think about people, trapped,
Who can only socialise up to a certain extent.

When you're looking around,
At all the beautiful, towering trees.
Do you think about the life,
Of people who just can't see.

You may be thinking this is horrible,
But how does this relate to me.
You can make it all slightly better,
By donating to charity.
