Book of the Week

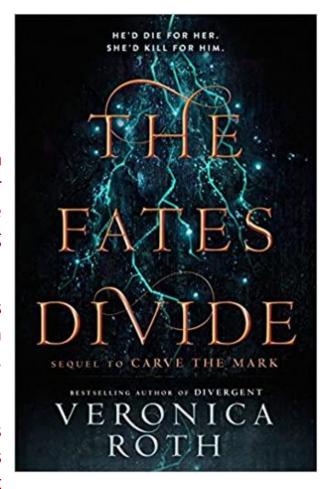

The Fates Divide by Veronica Roth

Available on Kindle for £2.99

In this follow-up to Carve the Mark Roth reveals how Cyra and Akos fulfil their fates. It is a richly imagined tale of hope and resilience told in four stunning perspectives.

The lives of Cyra Noavek and Akos Kereseth are ruled by their fates, spoken by the oracles at their births. The fates, once determined, are inescapable.

Akos is in love with Cyra, in spite of his fate: he will die in service to Cyra's family. And when Cyra's father, Lazmet Noavek – a soulless tyrant, thought to be dead – reclaims the Shotet throne, Akos believes his end is closer than ever. As Lazmet ignites a barbaric war, Cyra and Akos are desperate to stop him at any cost. In a stunning twist, the two will discover how fate defines their lives in ways most unexpected.

What are you reading?

Let us know what your current book is...

Mrs. Davidson has just finished The Beekeeper of Aleppo by Christy Lefteri and she wholeheartedly recommends it. Here is some information on the story:

In the midst of war, he found love. In the midst of darkness, he found courage, In the midst of tragedy, he found hope. What will you find from his story?

Nuri is a beekeeper; his wife, Afra, an artist. They live a simple life, rich in family and friends, in the beautiful Syrian city of Aleppo - until the unthinkable happens. When all they care for is destroyed by war, they are forced to escape. As Nuri and Afra travel through a broken world, they must confront not only the pain of their own unspeakable loss, but dangers that would overwhelm the bravest of souls. Above all - and perhaps this is the hardest thing they face - they must journey to find each other again. Moving, powerful, compassionate and beautifully written, The Beekeeper of Aleppo is a testament to the triumph of the human spirit. Told with deceptive simplicity, it is the kind of book that reminds us of the power of storytelling. Thank you Mrs. Davidson ©

Don't Quit by John Greenleaf Whittier (1807-1892)

When things go wrong as they sometimes will, When the road you're trudging seems all up hill, When the funds are low and the debts are high And you want to smile, but you have to sigh, When care is pressing you down a bit, Rest if you must, but don't you quit. Life is strange with its twists and turns As every one of us sometimes learns And many a failure comes about When he might have won had he stuck it out; Don't give up though the pace seems slow— You may succeed with another blow. Success is failure turned inside out— The silver tint of the clouds of doubt, And you never can tell just how close you are, It may be near when it seems so far; So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit— It's when things seem worst that you must not quit.

Can you guess the book titles below?

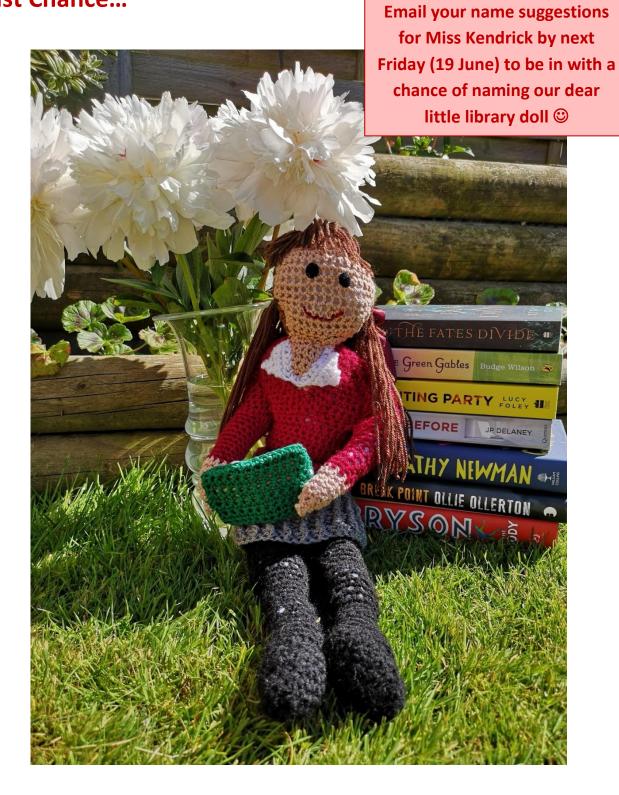

Have you run out of good books to read?

Here's Ms Fieldsend's advice on what you can do. Read through the advice, but if you are still stuck, please let Ms Fieldsend know (jfieldsend@kendrick.reading.sch.uk).

- 1. Re-read! Oscar Wilde said that the mark of a good book is that you can read it more than once. You will find all sorts of things you missed the first time, and meeting characters again that you had forgotten can feel like meeting old friends.
- 2. Consider branching out and reading the sort of thing you would never normally choose. Someone in your family may have some reading material you would never consider, which might include different genres and non-fiction (my older brother was a big football fan and got a weekly comic about a footballer called 'Roy of the Rovers'. One rainy afternoon I came across his stack of comics, and started to look through. Soon I was gripped by the tales of rivalry, ambition, conflict, dilemmas, disappointment, and triumph. I never re-read 'Roy of the Rovers', but that afternoon sticks in my mind as one of enjoyment and discovery, and it changed my view of football as well!).
- 3. Ask your parent/s if they have any books you would enjoy. You might have been staring at books on shelves in your house all your life, and never considered reading them (my parents had a book called 'On the Beach' on their book shelf, and for many years I assumed it was a toddler's picture book about what you can find on a beach. But one day I impulsively pulled it down, and my dad said I might enjoy it. It turned out to be something very different, and became one of my favourite novels).
- 4. If you have a suitable device you can use, investigate books you can download for free. Most older books are out of copyright which means they are available to download for free. These include classic novels, including classic children's novels (E Nesbit, anyone?)
- 5. Write your own story. CS Lewis said that he wrote the sort of books he would like to read. No one else was doing it so he would have to. If you can't find a book that suits you at the momentwhy not have a go at writing something yourself, purely for your own enjoyment?
