

Poetry Competition

Holocaust
Memorial
Day

2021

Poetry can be incredibly powerful. During the Holocaust and other genocides, those persecuted wrote poetry to express their feelings of loss, suffering and hope.

Survivors wrote poetry afterwards as a response to their experiences. Writing, reading and sharing poetry can be a creative way to bring people together, even if you are not able to physically join together.

We are inviting you to write a poem based on this year's theme:

Be the light in the darkness

Write about what this means to you; write from your heart; express your feelings.

Entries must be submitted by Friday 12 February.

Prize for best poem: £25 National Book Token.
